Town of Kenly Urges Residents to Conserve Water Following Johnston County's Request

Kenly, NC – The Town of Kenly is urging all residents and businesses to conserve water following a recent request from Johnston County, our primary water supplier. Due to ongoing challenges and increased demand on the water supply during the current hot, dry weather, Johnston County has issued a call for all of its water users to implement water conservation measures.

Johnston County's Press Release Highlights:

Smithfield, NC – The Johnston County Department of Public Utilities requests the cooperation of customers to ensure a reliable water supply during the current period of hot, dry weather. Irrigation usage in the County has created above-normal water demands, and some of the County's main purchase supply sources are temporarily limited.

Johnston County asks that customers employ voluntary water conservation measures to limit non-essential water use. Additionally, all customers are reminded of the County's mandatory year-round conservation policy. The policy allows for alternate day irrigation for in-ground irrigation systems and hose-end sprinklers based on the customer's address. Odd number street addresses are allowed to water on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, while even number street addresses are allowed to water on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Sundays. No irrigation is allowed on Mondays. Pool filling days should correspond with allowed irrigation days.

Visit the Johnston County website for the full policy and water conservation suggestions. Please contact Johnston County Public Utilities at 919-989-5075 with any questions. They apologize for the inconvenience and sincerely appreciate your cooperation.
